PEPERINO ROSA

COLOUR

Pink

MACROSCOPIC DESCRIPTION

Peperino is a particular stone type whose pink variety is very rare and precious. Extracted by quarries that are found in center Italy (Viterbo), Peperino Rosa is very recognizable thanks to its pink background flooded by many particles of darker or black minerals, similar to pepper grains, characteristic from which the name Peperino derives.

A stone formed from the solidification of volcanic materials, Peperino Rosa is for this a very resistant material to atmospheric conditions but very manageable. Peperino Rosa has a very elegant aspect and it could be used by itself or in combination with other stones or monochromatic marbles. Possible realizations of Peperino Rosa are applications for both interiors and exteriors as floorings, staicases, facings and façades, decorative elements for public and private use and many more.
