Category: arabescato

Colour: Grey-white

Petrographic name
(according EN
12407): Marble

Macroscopic description: A fine-grained, compact lithotype with a breccia appearance composed of white clasts with a sub parallel orientation that range in size from subcentimetric to pluricentimetric (in which case fine light grey or brown veins can be observed). These are immersed in a lightish grey groundmass and the edges may be more or less distinct. There is also a close-knit pattern of fine white veins in the groundmass and scarce surface porosity.
